Referring to the need of additional railroad facilities, Mr. Thom said: "It has been found that the wealth of the countr yhas been increasing Detroit for 11 days, closed Saturday eight or nine per cent a year and the same ratio of increase has held good as to the demand for transportation. For the next 10 or 15 years at least, the investment in railroad facilities to meet the large require ments of the future must consequent ly grow at a corresponding annual rate of increase."

The estimate of $1,250,000,000 for additional transportation facilities inlcudes nothing for extensions into new territory, he added.

"Where is this money to come from?" asked Mr. Thom. "This problem is one of vital interest to the public because on its successful solution depend the commercial facilities of the country.

DENMARK.

Lieutenant Poliner, now twenty-five years old, entered the Danish army a few years ago as a private. After passing his degree he became lieutenant and at once took a fancy to flying. He is generally recognized as a cool-headed, skilled and daring airman. As regards the Atlantic flying, he says he did not find anybody willing to listen to his plan at the start, but ultimately Prince Axel, the royal air pilot, backed him and matters then went more thly. "The building of a flying boat," he continued, "of the dimensions necessary for my experiments requires most careful consideration and preparation. The first condition is to get two very powerful motors to drive the engine, and I doubt that I can get them in this country. By permission of the military authorities I am therefore going to Berlin, where I am cer-tain to find what I want without much difficulty. The motors must be of a capacity to enable me to make a speed of about one hundred and sixty kilometers per hour-that is to say, four thousand kilometers must be made in one dash, being the distance between Europe's extreme western outpost, the Farce island, and the new world's extreme eastern point, New-foundland, I calculate that this journey must be covered in not more than twenty-four hours, because I consider it practically impossible to have my lands tied up to the steering apparatus for any longer period. The boat must be able to carry, besides myself my mate, two tons of dead-weight, consisting of extra apparatus for steering and navigating, utensils, oil, food and a perfect wireless system to enable me to summon assistance in cas f accident. Laden with mystery, the steamer

Kristianiafjord of the Norwegian American line, reached New York November 9, after an 11-day voyage from Bergen. The passengers got their first-inkling of the mystery when Capt. S. C. Hiortdahl received the British officials at Kirkwall, November 3. After 55 sacks of mail had been taken off, the Britishers, who seemed to have received advance information, began a thorough search of the baggage hold There, one of them fell upon a small, innocent-looking handbug of bluck leather. The bag was selzed and the ship's officers commanded to produce the owner. No mark of identification was upon the handbag and passengers denied all knowledge of it. Without explanation, some of the officials took it ashore. Other officials who mained on board whispered that it contained contained American securities of enormous value, that in some unexplained way it had left Germany without escort, and had deposited itself in the most conspicuous place in the buggage hold. One story circulated about the ship placed the value of the securities at $40,000,000. One man said he heard the securities were North $1,000,000. More mystery developed when stewards reported a ghost in the galley on Thursday night. Search parties were organized, but it was not until Friday that the ghost was laid. He proved to be Arnold von Tulen, twenty-seven years old, German surgeon. He was found in the galley ventilator. For 13 days he had rested on a narrow projection inside the ventilator at an altitude of about 40 feet from the galley floor. To re-lieve the monotony, the surgeon nightly descended to the galley where he elped himself to food and water. Dr. Tulen von. said he had escaped rom a British concentration camp in September and had slowed away on a vessel which landed him at Bergen. Then, instead of stowing away ngain on a vessel that would take him to Germany, he decided to attempt the trip to America. He denied all knowledge of the bag and its supposedly valuable contents. Captula Hiortdale cided whether to send him to Eills island or keep him prisoner on the Kristianiafjord. In the latter event, Von Tulen anticipates another enforced sojourn in England.

Autos and Railroads.

In a considerable number of annual reports of railroad presidents in the last two years mention has been made inroads which automobiles are making on railroad passenger busi-ness. There is another aspect, however, of the development of the automobile and automobile truck which may turn out to be of considerable advantage to rullroad development. The use of the automobile and the automobile truck is acting as a preventive of branch line railroad building, thus conserving capital for betterments to existing lines. A good road is built by the state or county, and this road, with the development of the automobile truck, acts as a feeder for the railroads which it crosses and, moreover, a feeder built with the public's capital and not the railroad company's capital.

So he questioned her hour after hour and day after day until Klara thought he must have been fed on catechisms. At first she confessed to some of the minor misdeeds of the gang and then she went a little further and confessed sundry grave crimes and then, as the magistrate still kept up his questioning, she told a story that shook Switzerland from one end to the other.

She said that her brother and two or three others of the celebrated gang, had murdered Herr Keller. They had been hired to do so by two eminent citizens of Lucerne, and had ambushed themselves in some shrubbe, s border-expecting his daughters. When they saw the outlines of the girls in the darkness they thought their plans were frustrated, but just then one of the girls turned back to find her shoe, and at that moment they seized Keller and threw him into the water. The story agreed in every particular with the known facts, and the resulting sensation was tremendous.

The alleged instigntors of the crime The alleged instigators of the crime were at once arrested and thrown into juil. They were Joseph Pfyffer and Dr. Leodegur d'Orelli, citizens of high standing, members of the cantonal council and lenders of the Ultramoutane party. Their hatred of Kellerhad been well known, and it was against them that the dark hints of foul play were directed immediately oul play were directed immediately after the death of Keller. A dragnet was put out for the vagrants, and many of them, including the chief, were brought in. The trial was long drawn out, and Switzerland was in a ferment while it lasted. The confession of Klara Wendel was corroborated by her brother and the alleged accomplices. They confessed so freely and fully, and with such engaging candor, as to create some sus picion. Their story was that they had net Dector d'Orell and Pryffer at ar ale house on the evening of the crime, and had agreed to remove Keller for a certain sum of money which would be handed over as soon as the deed was lone. The doctor informed them that Keller would return home on foot after eight o'clock, and they laid in wait for him, as related above. The job done, John Wendel waited upon the doctor next day and was paid his wages in

The story was circumstantial and overed every possible point, but Wendel was such a notorious liar, and his issociates were so celebrated for plain and fancy perjury, that the moothness shoe in the mud, and was engaged a budgered by hawyers, they began to contradict each other, and to confe things which were known to be untrue. so it was easy in the end to shoot their

Deprived of its chief and inspiration, the helmntlosen lost its grip, and twenty years later it was practically extinct.

If one has the habit of consulting the dictionary, he is even inclined, in the midst of conversation with a friend or an acquaintance, to reach for it in order to get the exact meaning of a word that has raised doubts in his mind. This is a compliment to a tried friend because it adds the confidential thoughts of a third, but it may appear to a visitor or a casual acquaintance to be merely bad manners, interrupting the attention that he considers his due as a guest; accordingly it is necessary at times to hesitate and consider whether Smith is to go away thinking the host illbred, or whether, by the act of intro ducing him to your dictionary, he is to he sacramentally admitted to friend-

Lieutenant Poliner, now twenty-five years old, entered the Danish army a few years ago as a private. After passing his degree he became lieutenant and at once took a fancy to flying. He is generally recognized as a cool-head-ed, skilled and daring airman. As regards the Atlantic flying, he says he did not find anybody willing to listen to his plan at the start, but ultimately Prince Axel, the royal air pilot, backed him and matters then went more "The building of a flying boat," he continued, "of the dimensions necessary for my experiments require most careful consideration und preparation. The first condition is to get two very powerful motors to drive the engine, and I doubt that I can get them in this country. By permission of the military authorities I am therefore going to Berlin, where I am certain to find what I want without much difficulty. The motors must be of a capacity to enable me to make a speed of about one hundred and sixty kilometers per hour-that is to say, four thousand kilometers must be made in one dash, heing the distance between Europe's extreme western outpost, the Faroe island, and the new world's extreme enstern point. The boat must be able to carry, besides myself and my mate, two tons of dead weight, consisting of extra apparatus for steering and navigating, utensils, oil, food and a perfect wireless system to enable me to summon assistance in accident. A well-known Danish boat builder has promised to construct a boat, in which two motors, each of one hundred and eighty-horse power, will placed. It is expected to be ready by March 1. I will then make some tests flying across the Baltic and the Kattegat to Christiania and Stockholm, and if these trips prove satisfactory,

There, one of them fell upon a small, nnocent-looking handbug of bluck leather. The bag was selzed and the hip's officers commanded to produce the owner. No mark of identification was upon the handbag and passengers denied all knowledge of it. Without explanation, some of the officials took it ashore. One story circulated about the ship placed the value of the securities at $40,000,000. said he heard the securities were worth $1,000,000. More mystery developed when stewards reported a ghost in the galley on Thursday night. Search parties were organized, but it was not until Friday that the ghost was laid. He proved to be Arnold von Tulen, twenty-seven years old, German surgeon. He was found in the galley ventilator. For 13 days he had rested on a narrow projection inside the ventilator at an altitude of about 40 feet from the galley floor. To relieve the monotony, the surgeon nightly descended to the galley where he helped himself to food and water. Dr. von Tulen said he had escaped from a British concentration camp in September and had stowed away on a vessel which landed him at Bergen. . Then, instead of stowing away ugain on a yessel that would take him to Germany, he decided to attempt the trip to America. He denied all knowledge of the bug and its supposedly chasing a part. A boiler and an old valuable contents. Captain Hioridale when seen by the reporters said he would not discuss the bug mystery. As for Von Tulen, the captain was unde cided whether to send him to Ellis island or keep him prisoner on the Kristianiafjord. In the latter event, Von Tulen anticipates another enorced sojourn in England.

QUEER OLD-TIME RAILROADS One Used Oxen Motive Power Up Hill

The history of railroad construction and operation in this country offers many curious and interesting details. Among these none is more curious than that pertaining to a line which was operated between Marshall, Tex., and Shreveport, La., during the Civil war. The owner of this road made money, and he eventually sold it to the Texas & Pacific company.

The owner's name was John Higginson. He had many titles-chairman of the board, president, vice pres ident, superintendent, trainmaster, rondmaster, freight and passenger engine were mounted on a small ast agent, freman, conductor and master agent, meman, conductor and master agent. His road was known as the mechanic. His road was known as the Memphis, El Paso & Pacific and was 40 miles in length.

On leaving Marshall there was a long grade, to say nothing of the grades elsewhere on the line. During the war the soldiers "took" the greatsystem until it passed into other hands. The motive power was of the best in those days, and consisted of several yokes of oxen, commonly known as "hayburners." The oxen were, it is said, generally on time.

Mr. Higginson's train was operated on the triweekly plan. When a "carwas gathered up and everything ready for the trip the oxen were loaded into the first box car in the train. The next car was loaded with freight

WHAT HAPPENED TO HERR KEL

ON the evening of September 1816, Herr Keller, chief magistrate f Lucerne, left his office for his home country, accompanied by his daughters Salesia and Hildegarde. It was a disgusting aight, with every variety of rain and wind. Their pathollowed the course of the tempestuous Reuss, and was in places dangerous but they all knew it so well that they ould have followed it blindfold.

Now and then Herr Keller called out cheery greeting to the girls and they inswered in kind, for they were robust, happy people. They walked in single file, Salesia first, the father next, and Hildegarde last. As they neared the end of their journey Hildegarde lost a shoe in the mud, and was engaged a minute or two refitting it to her foot, then—she hastened after the others. Eventually the house was reached and the girls opened the door and looked around for their father, but he was not -visible. They were astonished They were quite sure that he had been with them a few minutes before. Servants were summoned, and a party started out with lanterns to search for the missing man. Their search was in vain. On the following day the hody of Keller was found where ashere by the swollen terrent are accepted in some other countries."

Their chief was John Wendel, a rasrested a score of times, but he was such an expert in perjury, and his followers were so well drilled, that It was On a May night in 1824 a shop at Nafels was robbed, and a few days later a young woman of the helmat-losen, named Klara Wendel, was arrested, with some of the stolen goods in her possession. She was known to be a sister of the clusive Join Wendel, and the magistrate who examined thought he saw an opportunity to get would not be received by the post of-fice except as regards the first name. Klara thought he must have been fed on catechisms. At first she confessed to some of the minor misdeeds of the gang and then she went a little further, and confessed sumlry grave crimes and then, us the magistrate still kept up his questioning, she told a story that shook Switzerland from one end to the other...

She said that her brother and two or three others of the celebrated gang, had murdered Herr Keller: They had been hired to do so by two eminent citizens of Lucerne, and had ambushed themselves in some shrubbers bordering the path along the Reus on that night of storm. They knew Keller into steam t expecting his daughters. When they saw the outlines of the girls in the darkness they thought their plans were frustrated, but just then one of the girls turned but to find her shoe, and at that moment they seized Keller and hrew him into the water. The story agreed in every particular with the known facts, and the resulting sensation was tremendous.

The alleged instigators of the crime were at once arrested and thrown into jail. They were Joseph Pfyffer and Dr. Leodegar d'Orelli, citizens of high Dr. Leodegar d'Orem, cuizens of miga-standing, members of the cantonal council and leaders of the Ultramon-tane party. Their hatred of Keller had been well known, and it was against them that the dark hints of foul play were directed immediately after the death of Keller.

A dragnet was put out for the vagrants, and many of them, including the chief, were brought in. The trial was long drawn out, and Switzerland was in a forment while it lasted. The confession of Klara Wendel was corroborated by her brother and the alleged accomplices. They confessed so freely and fully, and with such engaging candor, as to create some suspicion. Their story was that they had met Doctor d'Orelli and Pfyffer at an ale house on the evening of the and had agreed to remove Keller for a certain sum of money which would be hunded over as soon as the deed was done. The doctor informed them that Keller would return home on foot after eight o'clock, and they laid in wait for him, as related above. The job done. John Wendel waited upon the doctor next day and was paid his wages in gold.

The story was circumstantial and covered every possible point, but Wendel was such a notorious liar, and his associates were so celebrated for plain and fancy perjury, that the very smoothness of their story created cloubts in the minds of the jurymen. As the trial went on, and the witnesses were examined and re-examined, and budgered by lawyers, they began to contradict each other, and to confess things which were known to be untrue, so it was easy in the end to shoot their testimony full of holes, and the doctor and Pfyffer were acquitted, after having been in jail six months. They suffered more than, the imprisonment. however, for they were ostracized as long as they lived. The acquittal falled to convince their neighbors that the story of the Wendels was untrue. In order that nobody might accuse fighting?"

the court of grinding away for six months to no purpose, John Wendel was placed on trial at once, and, after a brisk and breezy trial, was convicted of murder, perjury, arson, assault and battery, mayhem and sundry other crimes, and was promptly hanged, to the great gratification of the leading business men. Deprived of its chief and inspiration, the heimstlosen lost its grip, and twenty years later it was practically extinct.

"The Common Law"

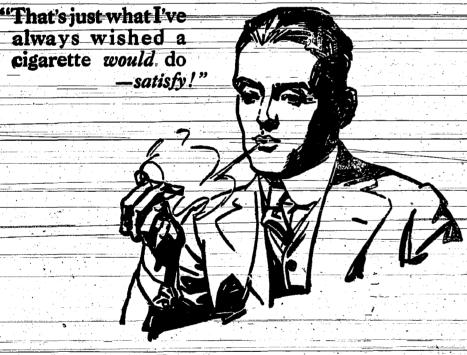

Robert W. Chambers has never written a more wonderful story than this brilliant novel of New York life. It's heroine, Valerie West, artist-model and philosopher, is one of the most sympathetic figures in modern literature. As protrayed by Miss Clara Kimball Young, she becomes a living personification of sweet and noble womanhood. Her joys and sorrows, her trials and ultimate triumph in the love of Kelly Neville, artist and gentleman, have given the screen one of the few really great photo-dramas ever produced.

THANKSGIVING DAY

HANKSGIVING DAY is celebrated thruout the entire Nation. The spirit of the occasion impells one to cast aside petty annoyances and look with a broader view to the many blessings that have been bestowed upon us during the past year.

It may be very fitting to say that the members of the Grayling Mercantile Company are mindful of the many courtesies that have been afforded them by their large number of patrons and friends. We appreciate fully the splendid loyalty that is manifest toward our store.

This has been an unusual year for all commercial lines and it has been only by the strictest attention to market conditions that we have been able to have for our customers such goods as they may have required. Also our long, in-advance purchases have been the means of considerable saving in prices, which advantage we have been pleased to pass to our patrons.

This store has many things to be thankful for, and especially are we grateful to those who have contributed to the success of our store by their patronage.

Very truly yours,

Grayling Mercantile Co.

THE QUARTERBREE

The Story of an Army Officer on an Indian Reservation By ROBERT AMES BENNET

 Q_{2}

It was told in the first installment of this story how Capt Floyd Hardy. U. S. A., just back in the States from the Philippines where h had put down a savage uprising of Moros, arrives at Lakotah Indian reservation in the Northwest. He finds a party of angry Indians firing on three white persons who have sought shelter in the canyon. The whites are old Jake Dupont, a trader, his beautiful daughter, Marie, and a young Easterner named Vandervyn. They are ill-mannered toward Captain Hardy, but he risks his life and routs the Indians. He becomes friendly with the whites and learns that Vandervyn, nephew of a United senator, had expected to get the agency appointment, following the killing of Nogen, the regular agent, by an Indian. Also, he discovers that Marie is a great granddaughter of Chief Sitting Bull, and that she has been educated in a French-Canadian convent. This installment contains some revelations of conditions on the reservation.

The rescuers from the agency had reined in their sweating ponies to a lope when they first caught sight of the party on the butte side of the coulee. They struggled down the gulley at a walk, eight short-haired Indian policemen in blue uniform, and a tall, loose lipped young halfbreed in ordinary frontier clothes. As they stopped in the stream to water their ponies, each furtively studied the rider who was approaching on the big, rangy mare.

The jaded buckboard ponies were tugging their load up the slope of the terface when Hardy came down the line of agency buildings at a gallop. Murte Dupont was driving; but on the seat beside her was a brown-eyed, olive-skinned girl, who averted her andsome face with childish shynes as Hardy-wheeled his mare and reined un alongside.

Marie flushed under the officer's diect gaze, though, unlike her companlon, she did not seek to avoid it. He raised his hat with punctillous politeness. She bowed, and, gazing back at him with a level glance, quietly re-marked: "Good afternoon, Captain Hardy. I have brought your luggage,"

"That was very kind of you," said Hardy as he glanced at the other girl. Marie smiled in instant appreciation of the fact that he had spoken to her as to an equal. She patted her com-panion's work-reddened hand with her gloved fingers, "This is Charlie Red-bear's sister Olnna. They did not treat her well at school, so she ran away to come home. I want her to live with me; but she says she must be with her brother. You will not send her back?" The young girl looked at the new agent with a smile of timid appeal, and as quickly drooped her head in bashful embarrassment. Hardy's gaze softened, and he answered reassuringly:

(TO BE CONTINUED.) History of the Potato.

The potato was introduced into Spain, probably from Peru, early in the sixteenth century by some returning Spanish explorer whose name has not come down. It found its way into Holland and Italy, but was cultivated in gardens merely as a curiosity. Dices vary as to its introduction into England and the claims of Sir Francis Drake and Sir Walter Raleigh are in dispute. Both seem to have brough them almost simultaneously; one authority gives the year 1585 as the time when Drake brought them and 1586 as the year of their introduction by Raleigh. Another writer gives pre cedence to Raleigh. Hawkins, the slave trader, is said to have introduced potntoes to Ireland in 1505.

No Socka in German Army. The German soldier does not rear socks, but fussiappen. These are strips of cloth souked in tailow and wound about the feet. They are sup-posed to be preferable to socks in that they wear more evenly, are more easily cleaned and, when properly worn, are not so likely to wrinkle and causé blisters.

Military authorities disagree, how-ever, as to the relative value of socks and tallow-soaked strips. Either cov ering, though, is considered preferable to the custom of wearing no socks, which has prevailed in the French Spanish and Italian armics. Outlook

History of the Dahlia.

By a curious horticultural irony the dahlia, which has become the popular ldol of our early autumn flower shows, possesses a sadly prosaic history, the Landon-Chronicle-remarks, It has been developed from the Mexican to hers introduced about one hundred and thirty years ago by the Swedish botanist. Doctor Dahl, for the nurely commercial purpose of supplanting of supplementing the potato. They did not "catch on," and the dahlia dish soon disappeared from British dinner tables, but our gardeners at once saw the latent possibilities of the flower, from which they have evolved the double duilla and other delightfu foral fantasies. Thus the dahlia exactly reversed the fate of the red clover, which came to us in the guise of a garden flower but was found to make fine forage. The tubers of the duhlia, too acrid for our taste, are still enten in some parts of France.

QUIETED FOR SHORT TIME

Youthful Soldiers Had to Do So Thinking Before They Could Find Effective Answer to Gibe.

Some young volunteers were travel-ing to their drilling ground and a certain noisy section of them at one station sought to pass the time by hurling lil-manuered gibes at a smart-looking officer in the "Regulars," who was waiting for his train. He stood the fire very well for ten minutes, and then, stopping near the compartment which held the rowdy volunteers, said sharply to the guard:
"Guard, what is the meaning of this

Baking powders made from alum or phosphate may be bought for a trifle less than Royal Baking Powder, which is made from cream of tartar, derived from grapes.

Alum powders are not only cheap, but they differ greatly in leavening power.

If a cheap baking powder is used for a fine cake and the cake turns out a failure there is a waste of costly materials worth more than a whole can of the cheap baking powder.

Royal Baking Powder produces the finest food, and its use therefore, results in an actual saving.

CITIES AND STATES TO COM PETE IN RED CROSS SEAL SALE.

Pennants to be awarded to Winners. 300,000,000 Seals Distributed.

With the opening of the Red Cross ings and correspondents. Seal sale today, every state and thousands of cities, towns and villages are entering a competition to see who will sell the most seals per capita for the prevention of tuberculosis in their communities. Over 300,000,000 seals have been distributed for the sale.

The cities, towns and villages have been divided into 10 classes according o population ranging from 600 to 1, 000,000 and over. Pennants will be awarded by the American Red Cross and The National Association for the study and prevention of Tuberculosis in each of the classes. Similar pennants will be awarded to states selling its publications since 1898 the most seals per inhabitant, the Daily Newspapers and according to population.

Last year Hershey, Pa., sold more them. eals per capita than any other city or town in United States, reaching a to-tal of 29.04. In Rhode Island, 2.29 seals per capita were purchased by the people of the state, a record sale among the states. In addition to the pennants, a spetervals, but eat little when not hungry. cial honor certificate will be awarded to any community which sells five or more seals per inhabitant. It is hoped that the rivalry among cities and states vill stimulate the sale of Christmas seals to 100,000,000. This will mean $1,000,000 for the fight against tuberculosis in the United States.

The Shirk.

PROBABLY the most annoying, exasperating and altogether despicable characters with which we mortals have to contend is the shirk-the man who shunts his responsibilities onto another's shoulders.

The shirk is the original "get something for nothing" artist. He is an adept at "using" his friends. He is an expert-at-the-"con" game.

The shirk is frequently found asso clated with important undertakings. How he ever got there is a mystery How he manages to retain his place is still a greater mystery. He never volntarily does a stroke of work which he can by any book or crook persuade some credulous associate to perform. He is forever devising schemes by which to roll his own responsibilities onto other shoulders. He is utterly devoid of a sense of shame at his own deficiency and always has a ready ex cuse for his dereliction.

However, in most cases he has one redeeming quality—he is possessed of unlimited good humor. He has the faculty of imposing on you till you rise up in revolt, when he at once proceeds to "jolly" you into a good humor and into submitting to more of his tyranny. He always professes to believe in "bearing one another's burdens," but is generally preoccupied with his own affairs when your burden begins to chafe.

He, is in short, a cumberer of the earth and occupies the room that a good man should fill.

Every time we are thrown into close ouch with one of this gentry we are disposed to doubt if the problem of connection with our paper. A Proclamation. BY THE GOVERNOR.

"No man liveth to himself alone." This declaration is so simple that a child can understand it. The whole world frequently contributes to the ingredients of a simple morning meal. The every-duy comforts of life are the contribution of many minds and many hands. Literature, science, schools, art, colleges, universities and churches is no end to the original and benutiful are the gifts of the people. Our own combinations of ribbon and lace and United States, the greatest and noblest nation on earth, is of the people, as proclaimed in that matchless document, the Declaration of Independence. This charter of human rights recognizes the divine in the human. recognizes the divine in the human, the top a cream-colored, silk lace is if it were adopted by the nations of made into a small puff which is merethe earth, it would bring abiding ly a circular plece gathered about the world-peace, prosperity, and happness. God has given man the earth and its manifold riches.

This year, of all the years of this great Republic, is a fitting time for thanksgiving. No nation liveth to itself alone. May we on Thanksgiving Day remember in our prayers and acts, the millions of widows and orphans, the millions of maimed and dying. the millious of prisoners of war in other lands. They are our kindred. May America become a beacon light of liberty to all the world.

Therefore, I, Woodbridge N. Ferris, Governor of the State of Michigan, do hereby join the President of the United States in designating Thursday, the thirtieth of November as a day for all of the people of this Commonwealth to celebrate in thanksgive ing and prayer.

One Hundred Dollars reedge to fit over the top of the head. A frill of the same lace is sewed to the puff. Over this little lace cap a shaped piece made of ribbon or silk or satin is slipped. It is made of two pieces wide at the top and narrowing to a bridle under the chin, and is lined with silk. A narrow, corded piping finishes the edges, set between the outside and the lining. The bridle fastens with snap fasteners under a prim little bow of two loops. Millinery flowers are tacked on at the sides.

The cap below is made of two wheels of fine net joined by a gathered band-of-satin-ribbon, about five inches wide. The wheels are made of straight strips of net shirred together and edged with narrow val lace. This lace extends around the cap.

Baby ribbon is gathered and set about the wheels where the strips of net join and inside the lace edging. _At the back a bow with long loops and ends is made of narrow ribbon matching the cap in color.

Which Do You Prefer?

Pullman or Freight?

No one would think of riding in a freight car if he could enjoy the comfort of a big, comfortable easy riding Pullman parlor car.

So with automobiles. Most of the popular priced cars ride like freight cars. This is due to the old fashioned type of spring.

Many manufacturers still continue to use them.

The Overland does not. The 75 B Overland has the latest type of cantilever shock absorbing springs. As a result it is one of the easiest riding cars in the world. One demonstration will prove this.
